History

In City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 U.S. 507 (1997), the Supreme Court held that the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 (RFRA), 42 U.S.C. ' 2000bb et seq., exceeded Congress' powers under the Enforcement Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and thus could not constitutionally be applied to the states.

Note that RFRA still applies to the claims of federal and District of Columbia prisoners. O'Bryan v. Bureau of Prisons, 349 F.3d 399, 401 (7th Cir. 2003) (federal prisoners); Kikumura v. Hurley, 242 F.3d 950, 960 (10th Cir. 2001) (same); Jama v. U.S.I.N.S., 343 F.Supp.2d 338, 370 (D.N.J. 2004) (immigration detainees); Gartrell v. Ashcroft, 191 F.Supp.2d 23, 36-37 (D.D.C. 2002) (prison grooming policies requiring Muslim and Rastafarian prisoners to shave their beards and cut their hair subject to scrutiny under RFRA).

One court has held that prisoners cannot recover damages from the federal Bureau of Prisons under RFRA. Webman v. Federal Bureau of Prisons, 441 F.3d 1022 (D.C. Cir. 2006).

In response to City of Boerne, Congress enacted the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act of 2000 (RLUIPA), 42 U.S.C. ' 2000cc et seq. The statute re-establishes the compelling state interest/least restrictive means test that existed under RFRA for the religious claims of prisoners:

SEC. 3. PROTECTION OF RELIGIOUS EXERCISE OF INSTITUTIONALIZED PERSONS.

(a) GENERAL RULE- No government shall impose a substantial burden on the religious exercise of a person residing in or confined to an institution, as defined in section 2 of the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (42 U.S.C. 1997), even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability, unless the government demonstrates that imposition of the burden on that person--

(1) is in furtherance of a compelling governmental interest; and

(2) is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling governmental interest.

(b) SCOPE OF APPLICATION- This section applies in any case in which--

(1) the substantial burden is imposed in a program or activity that receives Federal financial assistance; or
(2) the substantial burden affects, or removal of that substantial burden would affect, commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes.

42 U.S.C. § 2000cc-1.

Constitutionality

RLUIPA's constitutionality has been hotly contested. The Supreme Court has held that the statute does not violate the Establishment Clause, but other constitutional challenges are being raised in the lower courts.

Findings of Constitutionality

Application

“This Act shall be construed in favor of a broad protection of religious exercise, to the maximum extent permitted by the terms of this Act and the Constitution.” 42 U.S.C. § 2000cc-3(g).

“The RLUIPA standard poses a far greater challenge than does Turner to prison regulations that impinge on inmates' free exercise of religion.” Freeman v. Texas Dept. of Criminal Justice, 369 F.3d 854, 858 n. 1 (5th Cir. 2004).

RLUIPA does not apply to federal prisons. Ish Yerushalayim v. United States Dep't of Corrections, 374 F.3d 89, 92 (2d Cir. 2004) (concluding that RLUIPA “clearly does not create a cause of action against the federal government or its correctional facilities”).

At least one court has held that only prisoners have standing to bring claims under RLUIPA. McCullum v. State of California, 2006 WL 2263912 (N.D. Cal. 2006) at *2 (non-prisoner Wiccan clergyman may not challenge under RLUIPA a prison's refusal to pay for Wiccan chaplains).

“program or activity that receives Federal financial assistance”

Section 8 of RLUIPA incorporates the definition of “program or activity” in Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which defines that term as “all of the operations of ... a department, agency, special purpose district, or other instrumentality of a State or of a local government ... any part of which is extended Federal financial assistance.” 42 U.S.C. § 2000d-4a.

Thus, it is sufficient to show that the state department of corrections receives federal financial assistance. Hoevenaar v. Lazaroff, 276 F.Supp.2d 811, 817-18 (S.D. Ohio 2003), rev'd on other grounds, 422 F.3d 366 (6th Cir. 2005); Lindell v. McCallum, 352 F.3d 1107, 1110 (7th Cir. 2003) (noting that “the Wisconsin prison system receives federal funding”); but see Ephraim v. Angelone, 313 F.Supp.2d 569, 575 (E.D. Va. 2003) (declining to apply RLUIPA because “plaintiff has not alleged that the Lunenburg Correctional Center or its dietary programs receive federal financial assistance”), aff'd, 68 Fed. Appx. 460 (4th Cir. 2003), cert. denied, 124 S. Ct. 1084 (2004).

“religious exercise”

RLUIPA defines “religious exercise” as “any exercise of religion, whether or not compelled by, or central to, a system of religious belief.” 42 U.S.C. § 2000cc-5(7)(A).

“Although RLUIPA bars inquiry into whether a particular belief or practice is ‘central’ to a prisoner's religion, the Act does not preclude inquiry into the sincerity of a prisoner's professed religiosity.” Cutter, 125 S. Ct. at 2124 n. 13.

“[A] religious exercise need not be mandatory for it to be protected” under RLUIPA. Kikumura v. Hurley, 242 F.3d 950, 960 (10th Cir. 2001) (pastoral visits).

“We emphasize that no test for the presence of a ‘substantial burden’ in the RLUIPA context may require that the religious exercise that is claimed to be thus burdened be central to the adherent’s religious belief system.” Adkins v. Kaspar, 393 F.3d 559, 570 (5th Cir. 2004), cert. denied, 125 S. Ct. 2549 (2005); id. at 568 (finding that Sabbath and holy day gatherings “easily qualify as ‘religious exercise’ under the RLUIPA’s generous definition”).

“While defendants argue that other Muslims interpret these creeds less strictly, permitting adherents to prepare pork while wearing gloves, they do not cast doubt on the sincerity of Williams’ interpretation. And, for purposes of RLUIPA, it matters not whether the inmate’s religious belief is shared by ten or tens of millions. All that matters is whether the inmate is sincere in his or her own views.” Williams v. Bitner, 359 F.Supp.2d 370, 375-76 (M.D. Pa. 2005), aff’d, 455 F.3d 186 (3d Cir. 2006).

See also Morrison v. Garraghty, 239 F.3d 648, 659 (4th Cir. 2001) (holding that “[d]iffering beliefs and practices are not uncommon among followers of a particular creed, and it is not within the judicial function and judicial competence to inquire whether the petitioner or another practitioner more correctly perceives the commands of their common faith” (internal alterations, citations and quotations omitted)) (analyzing First Amendment claim).

But see Murphy v. Missouri Dept. of Corrections, 372 F.3d 979, 988 (8th Cir.), cert. denied, 125 S. Ct. 501 (2004) (religious exercise burdened must involve a “central tenet” of, or be “fundamental” to, the plaintiff’s religion).

“substantial burden”

[A] government action or regulation creates a “substantial burden” on a religious exercise if it truly pressures the adherent to significantly modify his religious behavior and significantly violate his religious beliefs. And, in line with the foregoing teachings of the Supreme Court, the effect of a government action or regulation is significant when it either (1) influences the adherent to act in a way that violates his religious beliefs, or (2) forces the adherent to choose between, on the one hand, enjoying some generally available, non-trivial benefit, and, on the other hand, following his religious beliefs. On the opposite end of the spectrum, however, a government action or regulation does not rise to the level of a substantial burden on religious exercise if it merely prevents the adherent from either enjoying some benefit that is not otherwise generally available or acting in a way that is not otherwise generally allowed.

Adkins v. Kaspar, 393 F.3d 559, 570 (5th Cir. 2004), cert. denied, 125 S. Ct. 2549 (2005) (no substantial burden where prison’s requirement of qualified outside volunteers resulted in denial of congregative services when no such volunteer was available).

“Because the grooming policy intentionally puts significant pressure on inmates such as Warsoldier to abandon their religious beliefs by cutting their hair, CDC's grooming policy imposes a substantial burden on Warsoldier's religious practice.” Warsoldier v. Woodford, 418 F.3d 989, 996 (9th Cir. 2005).

“[S]tate action substantially burdens the exercise of religion within the meaning of the RLUIPA when it prevents a religious adherent from engaging in conduct both important to the adherent and motivated by sincere religious belief.” Coronel v. Paul, 316 F.Supp.2d 868, 880 (D. Ariz. 2004); id. at 882 (denying Pagan prisoner permission to attend Yaqui Indian and Native Hawaiian religious services may constitute substantial burden).

substantial burden found:

Prohibition on prisoner's preaching to others is a substantial burden. Spratt v. Wall, ____ F.3d ____, 2007 WL 1031462 (1st Cir. 2007), at *4.

Removing a prisoner from “Ramadan observance pass list” is a substantial burden. Lovelace v. Lee, 472 F.3d 174, 187 (4th Cir. 2006).

Each of the following is a substantial burden: (1) requiring Sunni Muslim prisoner to pray and fast for Ramadan jointly with Shiite Muslims; (2) denying Muslim prisoner access to religious services and religious meals while in “keeplock;” and (3) denying Muslim prisoner attendance at Ramadan meals and services on days when he used the law library. Salahuddin v. Goord, 467 F.3d 263, 275-79 (2d Cir. 2006).

Preventing a prisoner from observing the Muslim religious feast of Eid ul Fitr is a substantial burden. Shakur v. Selsky, 391 F.3d 106, 120 (2d Cir. 2004).

Denial of congregative religious worship may be a substantial burden. Murphy v. Missouri Dept. of Corrections, 372 F.3d 979, 988 (8th Cir.), cert. denied, 125 S. Ct. 501 (2004).

Prisoner's allegation that prison officials refused to recognize Wotanism (Odinism) as a religion states a claim under RLUIPA. Lindell v. McCallum, 352 F.3d 1107, 1109 (7th Cir. 2003).

On motion for preliminary injunction, where the state completely prohibited a prisoner from attending group worship that uses the Sacred Names, from resting on the Sabbath, and from consuming religiously “clean” food, prisoner could likely show substantial burden. Buchanan v. Burbury, 2006 WL 2010773 (N.D. Ohio 2006), at *6.

Delay in providing prisoner with prayer oil may, depending upon length of delay, constitute substantial burden. Perez v. Frank, 433 F.Supp.2d 955, 964 (W.D. Wis. 2006).

Allegation that prison staff intentionally omitted prisoner from list of those allowed to attend Native American religious services stated substantial burden, even though prisoner only missed three services; “it is difficult to imagine a burden more substantial than banning an individual from engaging in a specific religious practice.” Meyer v. Teslik, 411 F.Supp.2d 983, 989 (W.D. Wis. 2006).

Jail’s failure to arrange Jumah services for Muslim prisoners could constitute substantial burden. Larry v. Goetz, 2006 WL 1495784 (W.D. Wis. 2006), at *6.

Denying a prisoner Odinist literature is a substantial burden. “I understand plaintiff to allege that he is unable to attain his religious goal of achieving ‘godhead’ unless he is allowed to possess [specific Odinist texts]. An act that prevents an inmate from achieving his ultimate religious goal meets the ‘substantial burden’ test[.]” Borznych v. Frank, 340 F.Supp.2d 955, 968 (W.D. Wis. 2004).

Refusing to allow prisoner to wear garments required by Jewish law while being transported to outside medical provider states a claim under RLUIPA. Boles v. Neet, 333 F.Supp.2d 1005 (D. Colo. 2004).

Absolute ban on Five Percenter literature and assembly may constitute substantial burden. Marria v. Broaddus, 200 F.Supp.2d 280, 298-99 (S.D.N.Y. 2002).

Denial of a sweat lodge is a substantial burden on Native American prisoner’s religious exercise. Farrow v. Stanley, 2005 WL 2671541 (D.N.H. 2005), at *8.

Being required to cut one’s hair in violation of one’s religious beliefs is a substantial burden. Hoevenaar, 276 F.Supp.2d at 818; rev’d on other grounds, 422 F.3d 366 (6th Cir. 2005); Smith v. Ozmint, 2006 WL 895034 (D.S.C. 2006), at *4.

substantial burden not found:

Requiring a prisoner to fill out a form to receive kosher meals is not a substantial burden. Resnick v. Adams, 348 F.3d 763, 768 n. 6 (9th Cir. 2003).

Failure to provide Shiite Muslim prisoners separate services from Sunni Muslims is not a substantial burden. Orafan v. Goord, 411 F.Supp.2d 153, 159 (N.D.N.Y. 2006); but see Salahuddin v. Goord, supra.

Missing one's kosher meal seven times over a two-year period due to transport from jail to court is "simply an inconvenience;" "a substantial burden must be more than a mere inconvenience." Subil v. Sheriff of Porter County, 2005 WL 1174218 (N.D. Ind. 2005), at *4.

Being prohibited from growing a beard is not a substantial burden for Muslim prisoner. Gooden v. Crain, 405 F.Supp.2d 714 (E.D. Tex. 2005).

Denying a prisoner permission to change his name for religious reasons is not a substantial burden. Scott v. California Supreme Court, 2006 WL 2460737 (E.D. Cal. 2006), at *10 (report and recommendation).

"compelling governmental interest"

Courts uniformly hold that maintaining institutional order and security is a compelling governmental interest. See, e.g., Cutter, 125 S. Ct. at 2124 n. 13 ("prison security is a compelling state interest"); Warsoldier v. Woodford, 418 F.3d 989, 998 (9th Cir. 2005) ("Nevertheless, the question here is not whether prison security is a compelling governmental interest. It clearly is").

But "to prevail on summary judgment, [prison officials] must do more than merely assert a security concern." Spratt v. Wall, ___ F.3d ___, 2007 WL 1031462 (1st Cir. 2007), at *5 (quoting Murphy v. Mo. Dep't of Corr., 372 F.3d 979, 988 (8th Cir. 2004)). "We do not think that an affidavit that contains only conclusory statements about the need to protect inmate security is sufficient to meet [prison officials'] burden under RLUIPA." Id. at *6 n. 10.

Administrative convenience and costs savings are not compelling governmental interests. Memorial Hospital v. Maricopa County, 415 U.S. 250, 262-69 (1974). See also 42 U.S.C. § 2000cc-3(c) ("this Act may require a government to incur expenses in its own operations to avoid imposing a substantial burden on religious exercise").

"While our approach does suggest that a court should not rubber stamp or mechanically accept the judgments of prison administrators, our approach underscores that those judgments must nevertheless be viewed through the lens of due deference." Lovelace v. Lee, 472 F.3d 174, 190 (4th Cir. 2006) (citation omitted) (holding that an interest in "removing inmates from religious dietary programs where the inmate flouts prison rules" is not, without further elaboration, a compelling governmental interest).

"least restrictive means"

Under RLUIPA, prison officials have the burden of demonstrating that the challenged regulation is the least restrictive means of further a compelling governmental interest. See 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000cc-1; 2000cc-5(2) (“the term ‘demonstrates’ means meets the burdens of going forward with the evidence and of persuasion”).

“A governmental body that imposes a ‘substantial’ burden on a religious practice must demonstrate, and not just assert, that the rule at issue is the least restrictive means of achieving a compelling governmental interest.” O’Bryan v. Bureau of Prisons, 349 F.3d 399, 401 (7th Cir. 2003) (emphasis in original); accord, Spratt v. Wall, ____ F.3d ____, 2007 WL 1031462 (1st Cir. 2007), at *8.

“We do not require evidence that racial violence has in fact occurred in the form of a riot, but we do require some evidence that MDOC's decision was the least restrictive means necessary to preserve its security interest.” Murphy v. Missouri Dept. of Corrections, 372 F.3d 979, 989 (8th Cir. 2004).

“CDC cannot meet its burden to prove least restrictive means unless it demonstrates that it has actually considered and rejected the efficacy of less restrictive measures before adopting the challenged practice.” Warsoldier v. Woodford, 418 F.3d 989, 999 (9th Cir. 2005) (restriction on hair length, with no religious exception, is not the least restrictive means of promoting compelling state interest in prison security).

“To meet the least restrictive means test, prison administrators generally ought to explore at least some alternatives, and their rejection should generally be accompanied by some measure of explanation. A blanket statement that all alternatives have been considered and rejected, such as the one here, will ordinarily be insufficient.” Spratt v. Wall, ____ F.3d ____, 2007 WL 1031462 (1st Cir. 2007), at *6 n. 11 (holding that prison officials failed to show, on motion for summary judgment, that complete ban on preaching by prisoners is least restrictive means of promoting prison security).

However, a recent decision by the Sixth Circuit appears to partially shift the burden to the plaintiff on this issue: “Hoevenaar did not rebut the state’s expert testimony regarding the problems with his suggested alternatives by substantial evidence that the officials exaggerated their response to security considerations.” Hoevenaar v. Lazaroff, 422 F.3d 366, 372 (6th Cir. 2005) (internal quotation marks omitted).

The fact that other prisons permit a given activity is evidence that banning the activity is not the least restrictive means of promoting prison security. Warsoldier, 418 F.3d at 999; Spratt, 2007 WL 1031462, at *7.

least restrictive means test satisfied:

Banning three specific Odinist texts that advocate violence is the least restrictive means of advancing compelling interest in prison security. Borzych v. Frank, 439 F.3d 388, 390-91 (7th Cir. 2006).

Prohibiting prisoner from affixing religious materials to cell walls, doors, and windows was least restrictive means of advancing compelling interest in prison order and security. Mark v. Gustafson, 2006 WL 845851 (W.D. Wis. 2006), at *7.

Ragland v. Angelone, 420 F.Supp.2d 507, 519 (W.D. Va. 2006) (restrictions on hair length and ban on beards was least restrictive means of advancing compelling interest in prison security).

Gooden v. Crain, 405 F.Supp.2d 714 (E.D. Tex. 2005) (requiring prisoners to be clean shaven is least restrictive means of advancing compelling interest in prison security).

least restrictive means test not satisfied:

Barring prisoners who do not observe Ramadan fast from Ramadan prayer services is not the least restrictive means of advancing the state's articulated interest in "removing inmates from religious dietary programs where the inmate flouts prison rules." Lovelace v. Lee, 472 F.3d 174, 191 (4th Cir. 2006).

Denial of Ta'lim (Muslim educational classes) violates RLUIPA. Daker v. Wetherington, ____ F.Supp.2d ____, 2007 WL 92502 (N.D. Ga. 2007), at *10.

On motion for preliminary injunction, defendants were unlikely to be able to demonstrate that denying prisoner the opportunity for group worship, rest on the Sabbath and Holy Days, and a religious diet serves a compelling state interest, where prisoners of other religions were allowed these benefits; preliminary injunction granted. Buchanan v. Burbury, 2006 WL 2010773 (N.D. Ohio 2006), at *6.

Complete ban on Cherokee Sacred Fire ceremony and on use of medicinal herbs, and denial of religious exemption from beard length regulation, "violates RLUIPA;" ban on smoking tobacco and smudging in cell does not. Smith v. Beauclair, 2006 WL 2348073 (D. Idaho 2006), at *7-8.

A complete ban on Melanic literature is not the least restrictive means of advancing prison security. Johnson v. Martin, 2005 WL 3312566 (W.D. Mich., Dec. 7, 2005), at *7-8.

Requiring a Muslim prisoner to handle pork while working in food services is not the least restrictive means of promoting institutional order and security. Williams v. Bitner, 359 F.Supp.2d 370, 376 (M.D. Pa. 2005), aff'd, 455 F.3d 186 (3d Cir. 2006).

Neither punishing prisoners who refuse for religious reasons to shave their beards, nor punishing prisoners who miss work to attend Friday religious services, is the least restrictive means of advancing a compelling government interest. Mayweathers v. Terhune, 328 F.Supp.2d 1086, 1095-97 (E.D. Cal. 2004).

See also Smith v. Haley, 401 F.Supp.2d 1240 (M.D. Ala. 2005) (accepting, for purposes of qualified immunity analysis, magistrate judge's conclusion that denying Odinst prisoner the right to possess a small crystal violates RLUIPA).

Remedies

Many courts have held or assumed that damages are available under RLUIPA. See, e.g., Ahmad v. Furlong, 435 F.3d 1196 (10th Cir. 2006) (discussing qualified immunity on RLUIPA claim); Agarwal v. Briley, 2006 WL 3523750 (N.D. Ill. 2006), at *17 (compensatory damages for emotional distress are barred by PLRA; nominal and punitive damages are available); Meyer v. Teslik, 411 F.Supp.2d 983, 991 (W.D. Wis. 2006) (same); Shidler v. Moore, 446 F.Supp.2d 942, 947 (N.D. Ind. 2006) (same); Smith v. Haley, 401 F.Supp.2d 1240 (M.D. Ala. 2005) (assuming that RLUIPA plaintiff can recover damages from individual prison employees in their individual capacities, but expressing doubt); Orafan v. Goord, 2003 WL 21972735 (N.D.N.Y. 2003), at *9 ("clearly the Act contemplates individual liability"). But others have held that they are not. Boles v. Neet, 402 F.Supp.2d 1237, 1241 (D. Colo. 2005); Williams v. Bitner, 285 F.Supp.2d 593, 602 (M.D. Pa. 2003). See also Madison v. Virginia, 474 F.3d 118, 130 n. 3, 131-32 (4th Cir. 2006) (holding that damages are not available against a state; leaving open whether they are available against state officials sued in their individual capacities).

Attorney fees are available under 42 U.S.C. § 1988(b) (and are therefore subject to the PLRA limitations on attorney fees, 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(d)).

Statute of limitations

Claims under RLUIPA are governed by the four-year statute of limitations set forth in 28 U.S.C. § 1658(a). Williams v. Gerges, 2005 WL 1773857 (E.D.N.Y. 2005), at *6; Couch v. Jabe, 2006 WL 2716140 (W.D. Va. 2006), at *3.

THE FIRST AMENDMENT

In cases in which RLUIPA and RFRA are not available, prisoners' religious claims are governed by the First Amendment. Restrictions on prisoners' First Amendment rights are governed by the test set forth in Turner v. Safley, 482 U.S. 78, 89 (1987): the restriction is valid if it is reasonably related to legitimate penological interests. @

The Turner standard is deferential, but "not toothless." Thornburgh v. Abbott, 490 U.S. 401, 414 (1989). Prison officials may not "pil[e] conjecture upon conjecture" to justify their policies. Reed v. Faulkner, 842 F.2d 960, 963 (7th Cir. 1988); see also Armstrong v. Davis, 275 F.3d 849, 874 (9th Cir. 2001), cert. denied, 537 U.S. 812 (2002) (prison officials cannot avoid scrutiny under Turner "by reflexive, rote assertions"); cf. Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 340 (2003) ("deference does not imply abandonment or abdication of judicial review").

One Circuit has suggested that the Turner test does not apply to pretrial detainees. Demery v. Arpaio, 378 F.3d 1020, 1028-29 (9th Cir. 2004), cert. denied, 125 S. Ct. 2961 (2005).

Under the Turner standard, the following restrictions on religious exercise have been found to violate the First Amendment:

Restrictions on ability to attend religious services. Mayweathers v. Newland, 258 F.3d 930, 938 (9th Cir. 2001) (upholding injunction against disciplining Muslim prisoners for missing work to attend Friday services); Omar v. Casterline, 288 F.Supp.2d 775, 781 (W.D. La. 2003) (refusal to tell Muslim prisoner the date or time of day to allow him to pray and fast states First Amendment claim); Youngbear v. Thalacker, 174 F.Supp.2d 902, 914-15 (N.D. Iowa 2001) (one year delay in providing sweat lodge for Native American religious activities violates First Amendment).

Denial of religious literature. Sutton v. Rasheed, 323 F.3d 236 (3d Cir. 2003) (denial of Nation of Islam texts).

Requiring violation of the Sabbath or other religious duties. McEachin v. McGuinnis, 357 F.3d 197, 204-05 (2d Cir. 2004) (intentionally giving Muslim prisoner an order while he was praying); Williams v. Bitner, 455 F.3d 186, 194 (3d Cir. 2006) (requiring Muslim prisoner to handle pork); Hayes v. Long, 72 F.3d 70 (8th Cir. 1995) (same); Murphy v. Carroll, 202 F.Supp.2d 421 (D.Md. 2002) (prison officials' designation of Saturday as cell-cleaning day violated Free Exercise rights of Orthodox Jewish prisoner).

Failure to accommodate religious dietary rules. Ford v. McGinnis, 352 F.3d 582, 597 (2d Cir. 2003) ("We ... have clearly established that a prisoner has a right to a diet consistent with his or her religious scruples”); Lomholt v. Holder, 287 F.3d 683, 684 (8th Cir. 2002) (punishing plaintiff for religious fasting); Beerheide v. Suthers, 286 F.3d 1179, 1192 (10th Cir. 2002) (requiring co-pay from prisoners requesting Kosher meals); Makin v. Colorado Dept. of Corrections, 183 F.3d 1205 (10th Cir. 1999) (failure to accommodate Muslim prisoner’s fasting requirements during Ramadan); Ashelman v. Wawrzaszek, 111 F.3d 674, 678 (9th Cir. 1997) (failure to provide Kosher meals); see also Levitan v. Ashcroft, 281 F.3d 1313 (D.C. Cir. 2002) (reversing summary judgment for defendants in Catholic prisoners’ challenge to denial of communion wine).

Under the Turner standard, challenges to grooming requirements and bans on religious objects have generally been unsuccessful. But such rules may be vulnerable if they are not enforced equally against all religions. See Sasnett v. Litscher, 197 F.3d 290, 292 (7th Cir. 1999) (First Amendment violated where prison banned the wearing of Protestant crosses but allowed Catholic rosaries); Swift v. Lewis, 901 F.2d 730, 731-32 (9th Cir. 1990) (where prison permitted long hair and beards for some religions but not others, it must present evidence justifying this unequal treatment); Wilson v. Moore, 270 F.Supp.2d 1328, 1353 (N.D. Fla. 2003) (Native Americans allowed to wear religious headgear only during religious services, while prisoners of other religions were allowed to wear their headgear at all times).

One court has held that atheism is a religion, and that a prison’s refusal to allow formation of an atheist study group, while allowing other religious groups, violates the Establishment Clause. Kaufman v. McCaughtry, 419 F.3d 678, 684 (7th Cir. 2005).

AN ACT

To protect religious liberty, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the 'Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act of 2000'.

SEC. 2. PROTECTION OF LAND USE AS RELIGIOUS EXERCISE.

(a) SUBSTANTIAL BURDENS-

(1) GENERAL RULE- No government shall impose or implement a land use regulation in a manner that imposes a substantial burden on the religious exercise of a person, including a religious assembly or institution, unless the government demonstrates that imposition of the burden on that person, assembly, or institution--

- (A) is in furtherance of a compelling governmental interest; and
- (B) is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling governmental interest.

(2) SCOPE OF APPLICATION- This subsection applies in any case in which--

- (A) the substantial burden is imposed in a program or activity that receives Federal financial assistance, even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability;
- (B) the substantial burden affects, or removal of that substantial burden would affect, commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes, even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability; or
- (C) the substantial burden is imposed in the implementation of a land use regulation or system of land use regulations, under which a government makes, or has in place formal or informal procedures or practices that permit the government to make, individualized assessments of the proposed uses for the property involved.

(b) DISCRIMINATION AND EXCLUSION-

- (1) EQUAL TERMS- No government shall impose or implement a land use regulation in a manner that treats a religious assembly or institution on less than equal terms with a nonreligious assembly or institution.
- (2) NONDISCRIMINATION- No government shall impose or implement a land use regulation that discriminates against any assembly or institution on the basis of religion or religious denomination.
- (3) EXCLUSIONS AND LIMITS- No government shall impose or implement a land use regulation that--
 - (A) totally excludes religious assemblies from a jurisdiction; or
 - (B) unreasonably limits religious assemblies, institutions, or structures within a jurisdiction.

SEC. 3. PROTECTION OF RELIGIOUS EXERCISE OF INSTITUTIONALIZED PERSONS.

- (a) GENERAL RULE- No government shall impose a substantial burden on the religious exercise of a person residing in or confined to an institution, as defined in section 2 of the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (42 U.S.C. 1997), even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability, unless the government demonstrates that imposition of the burden on that person--
 - (1) is in furtherance of a compelling governmental interest; and
 - (2) is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling governmental interest.
- (b) SCOPE OF APPLICATION- This section applies in any case in which--
 - (1) the substantial burden is imposed in a program or activity that receives Federal financial assistance; or
 - (2) the substantial burden affects, or removal of that substantial burden would affect, commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes.

SEC. 4. JUDICIAL RELIEF.

- (a) CAUSE OF ACTION- A person may assert a violation of this Act as a claim or defense in a judicial proceeding and obtain appropriate relief against a government. Standing to assert a claim or defense under this section shall be governed by the general rules of standing under article III of the Constitution.
- (b) BURDEN OF PERSUASION- If a plaintiff produces prima facie evidence to support a claim alleging a violation of the Free Exercise Clause or a violation of section 2, the government shall bear the burden of persuasion on any element of the claim, except that the plaintiff shall bear the burden of persuasion on whether the law (including a regulation) or government practice that is challenged by the claim substantially burdens the plaintiff's exercise of religion.
- (c) FULL FAITH AND CREDIT- Adjudication of a claim of a violation of section 2 in a non-Federal forum shall not be entitled to full faith and credit in a Federal court unless the claimant had a full and fair adjudication of that claim in the non-Federal forum.

(d) ATTORNEYS' FEES- Section 722(b) of the Revised Statutes (42 U.S.C. 1988(b)) is amended--

(1) by inserting `the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act of 2000,' after `Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993,'; and

(2) by striking the comma that follows a comma.

(e) PRISONERS- Nothing in this Act shall be construed to amend or repeal the Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (including provisions of law amended by that Act).

(f) AUTHORITY OF UNITED STATES TO ENFORCE THIS ACT- The United States may bring an action for injunctive or declaratory relief to enforce compliance with this Act. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to deny, impair, or otherwise affect any right or authority of the Attorney General, the United States, or any agency, officer, or employee of the United States, acting under any law other than this subsection, to institute or intervene in any proceeding.

(g) LIMITATION- If the only jurisdictional basis for applying a provision of this Act is a claim that a substantial burden by a government on religious exercise affects, or that removal of that substantial burden would affect, commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes, the provision shall not apply if the government demonstrates that all substantial burdens on, or the removal of all substantial burdens from, similar religious exercise throughout the Nation would not lead in the aggregate to a substantial effect on commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes.

SEC. 5. RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.

(a) RELIGIOUS BELIEF UNAFFECTED- Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize any government to burden any religious belief.

(b) RELIGIOUS EXERCISE NOT REGULATED- Nothing in this Act shall create any basis for restricting or burdening religious exercise or for claims against a religious organization including any religiously affiliated school or university, not acting under color of law.

(c) CLAIMS TO FUNDING UNAFFECTED- Nothing in this Act shall create or preclude a right of any religious organization to receive funding or other assistance from a government, or of any person to receive government funding for a religious activity, but this Act may require a government to incur expenses in its own operations to avoid imposing a substantial burden on religious exercise.

(d) OTHER AUTHORITY TO IMPOSE CONDITIONS ON FUNDING
UNAFFECTED- Nothing in this Act shall--

(1) authorize a government to regulate or affect, directly or indirectly, the activities or policies of a person other than a government as a condition of receiving funding or other assistance; or

(2) restrict any authority that may exist under other law to so regulate or affect, except as provided in this Act.

(e) GOVERNMENTAL DISCRETION IN ALLEVIATING BURDENS ON RELIGIOUS EXERCISE- A government may avoid the preemptive force of any provision of this Act by changing the policy or practice that results in a substantial burden on religious exercise, by retaining the policy or practice and exempting the substantially burdened religious exercise, by providing exemptions from the policy or practice for applications that substantially burden religious exercise, or by any other means that eliminates the substantial burden.

(f) EFFECT ON OTHER LAW- With respect to a claim brought under this Act, proof that a substantial burden on a person's religious exercise affects, or removal of that burden would affect, commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes, shall not establish any inference or presumption that Congress intends that any religious exercise is, or is not, subject to any law other than this Act.

(g) BROAD CONSTRUCTION- This Act shall be construed in favor of a broad protection of religious exercise, to the maximum extent permitted by the terms of this Act and the Constitution.

(h) NO PREEMPTION OR REPEAL- Nothing in this Act shall be construed to preempt State law, or repeal Federal law, that is equally as protective of religious exercise as, or more protective of religious exercise than, this Act.

(i) SEVERABILITY- If any provision of this Act or of an amendment made by this Act, or any application of such provision to any person or circumstance, is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act, the amendments made by this Act, and the application of the provision to any other person or circumstance shall not be affected.

SEC. 6. ESTABLISHMENT CLAUSE UNAFFECTED.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect, interpret, or in any way address that portion of the first amendment to the Constitution prohibiting laws respecting an establishment of religion (referred to in this section as the 'Establishment Clause'). Granting government funding, benefits, or exemptions, to the extent permissible under the Establishment Clause, shall not constitute a violation of this Act. In this section, the term 'granting', used with respect to government funding, benefits, or exemptions, does not include the denial of government funding, benefits, or exemptions.

SEC. 7. AMENDMENTS TO RELIGIOUS FREEDOM RESTORATION ACT.

(a) DEFINITIONS- Section 5 of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. 2000bb-2) is amended--

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking 'a State, or a subdivision of a State' and inserting 'or of a covered entity';

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking 'term' and all that follows through 'includes' and inserting 'term 'covered entity' means'; and

(3) in paragraph (4), by striking all after 'means' and inserting 'religious exercise, as defined in section 8 of the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act of 2000.'.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- Section 6(a) of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. 2000bb-3(a)) is amended by striking 'and State'.
